

TRIED MANY TIMES TO BE ARRESTED

Fitzgerald Says He Could Not Get Washington Police
Interested.

FINALLY GAVE HIMSELF UP

Claims Not to Have Seen Morganfield Since Latter's Academy Speech.

Satisfied, apparently, to face what other misfortune or trouble may have in store for him, Frank H. Fitzgerald, a trifle pale and haggard, talked in a cell at the First Police Station yesterday afternoon of his present trouble. He said that it was because he could no longer stand the suspense of being a fugitive from justice on the charge of grand larceny from Kinman & Company, his former employer, that he decided to surrender himself Friday night in Washington.

The prisoner said that he had been in Washington ever since he first fled from South Richmond, staying most of the time with friends, and at other times in a hotel. He never attempted to conceal his identity, and once, when he was picked up in Alexandria and mistaken for a missing man named William Gray, he gave his full name and address. This caused police officers every day, he was introduced to three and several times officers called at the house in which he was living to report ordinance violations. Each time he thought it was an officer calling for him, but he was never noticed.

He was prepared, he says, for arrest at any time, but, seeing that the Washington police were paying little attention to his case, he decided to surrender himself. He was locked up in the Sixth Precinct Station, where the officers thought he was wanted here for housebreaking, and was brought back to Richmond yesterday afternoon by Detective Sergeant Kellam.

Held on Larceny Charge.
Though his alleged pecuniations are said to have covered a period of months and to have included large sums, he is being held only on one warrant, which charges him with having stolen $90.00 from L. D. Kinman & Company, the grand larceny, and is sufficient to have caused his arrest anywhere in the United States.

Fitzgerald had not obtained the services of a lawyer yesterday. He talked over his case, though, he said, nothing definite to say of his alleged embezzlement. He informed Sergeant Kellam, however, that his alleged pecuniations covered not more than $3,000, and said that he owns a house worth $3,000, which would cover the losses of the company.

The first information, he said, that he had that he was wanted here on a criminal charge came to him through a newspaper. Once he decided to return to Richmond and surrender himself, and he prepared a telegram to Major Werner. It was given to an agent, but was never dispatched. Finally the suspense became unbearable, and he gave himself up to the first officer he saw.

Not With Morganfield.
The prisoner denied emphatically that he went away with a woman, and said that he had not seen Morganfield, the ex-convict, since the latter's appearance on the stage of the Academy of Music. He met Morganfield, he went on, at the latter's request, and dined with him. Afterwards they repaired to a clothing store, and Fitzgerald bought the ex-convict a few clothes. That he was not accompanied by a woman when he left South Richmond, he said, could be proved by a man named Bemiss, of the Southside.

The report that he had been seen in Alexandria was true, and there another advertisement of his fugitive life was robbed one night, he claims, of $100 by three men from Richmond. When he surrendered, he had only $25 on his person.

None of the family called on Fitzgerald on his confinement with him. His preliminary hearing will be held in Police Court this morning.

FINGER IDENTIFICATION

Richmond's Police Likely to Have New System.

Following what has been in the larger cities in this country and in most of the cities of Europe, it is probable that the Board of Police Commissioners will adopt the finger print system of identification in place of the Bertillon system now in use.

The Bertillon system was long in vogue the world over, but the finger print system, it is stated, has been found to be more accurate, and less trouble is experienced in obtaining it. The former operation, which consisted chiefly of a large variety of measurements, is long and difficult, whereas the new operation is simpler and more effective.

As with all other individual characteristics, the varied and complex lines found on the finger never change, and are never obliterated, except by disease. A police commissioner stated yesterday that he was bringing the matter up before the board at an early date.

INSURGENTS FIRM IN THEIR POSITION

Dissatisfied Students of Business
College Will Walk Out
This Morning.

ANOTHER MEETING IS HELD

Ultimatum Is That School Officials Must Get Another Teacher.

Still firm in their determination to make overtures to the faculty, and having received none, the insurgent students of the Massey Business College held another meeting on the Capitol terrace late yesterday afternoon and reiterated their intention to walk out in a body this morning when the class is called. While several of the students will not even return to the class room, the majority will take their places as usual, and unless Vice-President Layfield accedes in some way to their requests they will firmly assert, file out in an orderly manner, leaving the school for good.

As was shown by yesterday's meeting, the number of malcontents has increased rather than diminished. Professor W. P. Haynes, whose dismissal was the primary cause of the rupture, attended the meeting as he has all the others, and is in close touch with the situation. Last night he said that if his successor, whom the students claim is inexperienced, is replaced by another who comes up to the standard, he would endorse that they return to their desks.

Haynes's Statement.
"I regret exceedingly," said Professor Haynes, "that I should have been brought out so prominently in the case. As was stated yesterday, my part in it is secondary. It could do me no good to have the boys leave on account alone. If Mr. Layfield will agree to place a competent man in the position, I feel certain that the boys will return, and that there will be no further trouble. If this were done, I should surely advise them to return to the school."

Doomed Building Is Nearly Empty
By next Saturday night the Chamber of Commerce building will be empty from roof to basement and ready for a horde of wreckers who will in a few days begin tearing it down to make way for the First National Bank skyscraper, which is to rise on the spot. Tenants of the building have been moved out with great expedition, and generally have secured satisfactory homes.

The Chamber of Commerce offices will be the last to move. Until quarters in the new building are ready for occupancy, about eighteen months hence, the three departments will have rooms 211, 212 and 213 in the Mutual Building. Meetings of the board of directors and of large committees are to be held in the board room of the Business Men's Club, while smokers and other public meetings will take place in the Jefferson Hotel auditorium as heretofore.

Work to Be Pushed.
Architectural plans have already been accepted by the building committee of the First National Bank Building Corporation and in essential points are similar to those tentatively submitted some time ago. In exterior appearance the structure will be identical with the drawing recently reproduced in The Times-Dispatch, with the exception of a few minor details. The committee, which is made up of John M. Miller, Jr., of the First National Bank; Decatur Axtell, of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway; and W. D. Duke, of the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railroad, will have direct charge of the building, and will endeavor to push the work during the spring and summer to such a point that there need be no delay on account of bad weather.

While the building is to be the permanent home of the three corporations forming the syndicate, all of which have signed leases for ten years; ample space will be reserved for the Chamber of Commerce. The three upper floors will be fitted up for offices. It is said that the new building when completed will be the most modern office building in the South.

STATE WOULD LIKE TO COMPROMISE

Suggestion That Reduction in State Debt Principal Can Be Secured.

RECEPTION UNFAVORABLE

Believed Here That West Virginia's Day of Grace Has Long Passed.

Not only a compromise as to interest, but as to principal as well, is now suggested in West Virginia regarding the settlement of the State debt, in which a judgment for $7,000,000 has just been rendered by the Supreme Court of the United States. When such a solution, however, was suggested to a well-known Virginian last night, he said it was his opinion it would not be considered for a moment, either by Virginia or by the bondholders. "West Virginia had forty years in which to compromise, and steadily refused to do so," he said. "It comes with poor grace to offer a compromise now. I for one shall fight not only for every cent of the principal, but for the accrued interest as well. We ought to get at least $20,000,000."

Senator Intervened.
The suggestion as to an agreement for settlement was made by State Senator Henry Zilkken, of Wellsburg, W. Va., and quoted in the Wheeling Register. The interview was as follows:

"Well, Senator, do you think the Virginia debt question will come up?" "I cannot tell," answered the Wellsburg Democrat. "If the Governor includes the matter in his call (for an extra session), we will deal with it. Otherwise we cannot. The Supreme Court decision shows the wisdom of the Democratic contention that the $50,000 appropriated for carrying on this suit by the last Legislature was not necessary. We could have cut it out, however, because of the vote."

"We are now in for this debt and will have to meet it. I do not think the bondholders will attempt to exact even the full amount of the principal, and I believe in settling it as soon as possible. But I would fight for a reasonable settlement, not placing a crushing burden on the taxpayers of the State."

Newspaper Approves.
On this the Register comments as follows: "In the Senator's judgment the finding of the Supreme Court must be accepted as opening the cheapest way out of the difficulty at this late date, the compromise of the suit. This view has its strong points."

"The State has several courses open to it. The finding might be contested, which would possibly bring a decision for both principal and interest. The debt might be repudiated by the State, but lawyers do not seem to be agreed that this can be done. And it might result in further legal proceedings which in the end would be much more disadvantageous to the State than the present standing of the suit. The remaining course is that suggested by the Senator—compromise."

"The Republicans have so skillfully floundered in the matter that there is now no way in which they may avoid it entirely. The cheapest way out is compromise with the holders of the certificates. But 'fight for a reasonable settlement' should be the watchword."

LEADING LAWYER DIED YESTERDAY
H. St. John Coalter Succumbs to
Pneumonia at His Country
Home.

H. St. John Coalter, forty-one years old, a prominent member of the Richmond bar and well known in this city, died yesterday morning at 11 o'clock at his country home, "Marango," New Kent county, after only a few days' illness from pneumonia. His death was a shock to a wide circle of friends and many relatives. Few knew he had been sick. Mr. Coalter was at his office in this city last Wednesday, but was confined to his home the following day with a severe cold. His condition grew worse and on Friday pneumonia developed. Yesterday morning his condition was alarming, and a medical aid from Richmond was summoned and members of his family notified, but when they reached his bedside he had succumbed.

Mr. Coalter was a native of King William county. He studied law at Richmond College and graduated in 1892. The same year he formed a partnership with George E. Wise. This was dissolved eight years ago. Mr. Coalter retained offices, however, with Mr. Wise until only a few months ago. He won a reputation as a practicing attorney in Richmond and its surrounding territory. He was a missionary in clancancy, having been appointed little more than a year ago by Judge Daniel Grinnan.

His Family.
He was the son of the late St. George Tucker Coalter and of Mrs. Charlotte Drewry Coalter, who is living. Mr. Coalter married Miss Gregory, formerly head of the law school of Richmond College. Besides his wife he leaves three children—Elizabeth Coalter, Charlotte Eucadia Coalter and Roger Gregory Coalter—and two sisters and one brother—Mrs. H. H. Vaden, of Richmond; Mrs. E. Spencer, of St. Louis, Mo.; and R. T. Coalter, of New Kent.

For a long while Mr. Coalter and his family made their home in Richmond, but about one year ago he moved to New Kent, during his residence in this city he was a member of the First Baptist Church.

Besides being a member of the Richmond Bar Association, he was active in the affairs of Richmond Lodge, No. 45, R. P. O. E.

It is likely that the funeral will take place to-morrow.

Fight for Work at Three Cents a Day

So great is the need of millions of people in China for food that many of the missionaries in that field are giving some of them employment—at 3 cents a day—and paying for it out of their own pockets. Letters of appeal have been sent to headquarters in this and other countries, asking the home offices to call upon the public for money to aid in relieving the extreme suffering which is costing hundreds of lives.

Reports from the affected districts indicate that the situation is becoming more desperate. The wheat harvest, at the end of May. Until that time natives must seek food in all possible ways. They have no money, and are declining for the few opportunities to earn a few pennies a day.

The Times-Dispatch receives, acknowledges and forwards contributions to this fund. Yesterday being Sunday, the receipts were not handed.

FAMILY SEARCHES FOR CASHIER HILL

Missing Negro Leader Still Unheard From, Though There Are Clues.

Nothing definite was learned yesterday as to the whereabouts of Reuben T. Hill, colored, who disappeared from his home Friday morning. It was stated last night that the family had obtained several clues which may lead to finding him. It is still believed that he is in Washington, to which city he is known to have bought a ticket on Friday. The police can give only unofficial aid by asking the departments of other cities to help in the search for the missing man. The detective department has not been officially called on in connection with his disappearance.

Hill was one of the leading and best known negroes in Virginia and the South. He was for twenty-two years cashier of the True Reformers' Bank, which recently became insolvent. He occupied many other positions of importance and responsibility.

Members of the family and friends believe that his mind has become deranged on account of the failure of the bank which he so long served. The news of his disappearance, announced in The Times-Dispatch yesterday, aroused the keenest interest among the colored people, to nearly all of whom he is well known, and by which he has been held in the highest respect.

ADDRESS ON KOREA

Dr. Hahn Describes Manners and Customs of Hermit Kingdom.
"Years Among the Top-Knots, or the Life and Customs of the Hermit Kingdom," was the subject of an interesting lecture yesterday afternoon concerning Korea, by Dr. Davis E. Hahn, for five years missionary to that country, and a dental surgeon to the royal family there. Dr. Hahn spoke to the members of the Central Young Men's Christian Association in their auditorium.

Dr. Hahn proved a splendid speaker, and held the rapt attention of his audience until the close of his talk. Interestingly described the life of the natives, their strange and peculiar customs, and gave a fine insight into that much talked of section of the far East.

Dinner to Sun Agents.

The annual dinner of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada, given to the general agency by Neil D. Sills, Virginia and North Carolina, was held Friday evening at the Jefferson Hotel.
